To whom it may concern,

I am highly excited to write to you applying for the position of Web Developer in your company. I would be very grateful if you take your time to review my application.

Experience:

I had been working in a game company for a year. I was responsible for updating existing programs, identifying and correcting coding errors and leading a team of 5 colleagues. GitHub, Jira, Figma were some tools I used to manage projects. Languages I used include: C# for Unity3D, Lua for Cocos-2D, Android Studio.

For my second job, I worked in a trading company: Tradelink Electronic Commerce Limited(TLK), for another year. During my career in TLK, as a full-stack web developer, I was responsible for the projects of Import & Export of Goods in Hong Kong and Certificate of Hong Kong Origins, mainly doing frontend revamp, API development, data migration, etc. The tools used include Spring Boot Java, MySQL for backend and React, Bootstrap for frontend.

Hobbies:

I am delighted to express my passion in the position. I have developed the creative and artistic nature that I need as a Unity developer. I have learned how to write C# script using Unity game engine for a year, and I have also developed some simple 2D games on Google Play Store. One of my most successful games on the play store has attracted over 50k+ installations, and I would rate it as very successful as I've learnt basic UI/UX, vector calculation, programming skills and animation etc.

Meanwhile, currently I am doing some side projects using React and NodeJS. It shows my eagerness to learn new skills and maintain what I've learnt during my leisure time. For instance, SEO, data analysis, site traffic etc.

I hope that my application will meet the kind of requirements you need for the position. I am hoping for a chance to discuss it more in person as I get more acquainted with your company protocols. Thank you for your consideration.

Faithfully,

Chris WU, Man Fung
